Special Attention to Children

The internet is a tool, an aid, a resource center for many types of educational, informational, and informative media. Children should be monitored during their use of the internet, as there is no one method that we can control what your child sees, hears or uses when using the internet. There are a huge number of methods that a parent can control and limit what a child does, sees, reads, and uses when on the internet and we remain that it is the parents, or guardians responsibility of the child to ensure the child's online experience is one that you want them to have. Filtering tools can be implemented by parents / guardians with the use of software provided by your OS, your ISP or by purchasing additional filtering systems. To learn more about how to find filtering and using filtering programs we urge you to visit getnetwise.com for more information.
